EUREKA - What is it that more and more people – and businesses – need from a community to want to live, work and do business there?

This program will feature presentations that will help identify the aspects of Quality of Life (QoL), explain how to identify and measure progress in improving QoL, and provide a firsthand perspective on how QoL can be just as important as traditional business incentives in the decision-making of where to locate a business.

On Jan. 28 from 3 to 5 this program will be presented at the Woodford County Extension office, 117 W. Center, Eureka. For information about registration and fees, contact the Woodford County Extension office at 309-467-3789.
